

A move that really adds up

LOOKING for a career you can count on? Then Ideal Schools can ensure your future isn't left in the balance.

As specialists in home study training, Ideal Schools have helped thousands of people learn bookkeeping, accounting and payroll management skills from the comfort of their own properties.

Their tailored learning packages guide students through all the main aspects of bookkeeping, including final accounting for sole traders, partnerships, limited liability companies, clubs and societies.

Using fully licensed SAGE software, all Ideal Schools courses lead to industry-recognised professional qualifications with the Institute of Certified Bookkeepers and the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (Foundations in Accountancy).

What's more, because students learn from home, they gain all the benefits of further education without the need to drastically change their daily routine.

College principal and founder of Ideal Schools Al Vanden

Home-studies experts' bookkeeping success

Akker said: "Studying from home really appeals to people as they can fit their study around their personal lives without strict deadlines.

"They can also complete their studies as quickly as it suits them. Examinations, too, are almost all on an 'on demand' basis, so the term flexible learning really means exactly that.

"As we specialise in bookkeeping, accounting and related subjects, we are able to offer the personal touch, which leads to a genuine rapport with our students."

Founded in 1983, Ideal Schools are leading lights in the bookkeeping and accountancy industry.

In recent years, their courses and tutorial services have been nationally recognised - winning Training Provider of the Year awards from both the Institute of Certified Bookkeepers and the Bookkeepers Network.

Students at the school have also won many prestigious awards.

Only a few months ago, recent graduate Mulchand Dubey was named ICB Student of the Year, while fellow Ideal Schools student Leisa Turnbull was named runner-up.

Both Mulchand and Leisa have now gone on to forge successful bookkeeping careers in their own right - all thanks to their cutting-edge training.

Al Vanden Akker added: "Over the years, I have witnessed many changes within the industry and, here at Ideal Schools, we have managed to embrace these positively, to the benefit of our students.

"They quite rightly expect high-quality learning materials and we can deliver these in a quick and efficient manner with current technology."

For more details on the full range of training and courses available with Ideal Schools, call 0141 248 5200 or visit www.idealschools.co.uk

GRADUATES
Leisa Turnbull
and ICB
Student of the
Year Mulchand
Dubey

'We offer the personal touch, which leads to a genuine rapport with our students'